

TWENTY-THIRD REGIMENT GREETED BY LARGE CROWD THIS MORNING

Soldiers Are Met Two Miles West of the City and Are Given Greeting by Committee of Commercial Club—March From Vallonia in About Five Hours.

MANY JOINED IN PARADE TO CITY PARK

Camp is Established in Very Few Minutes—Colonel Edwin F. Glenn and Staff Will Be Guests of Honor at a Dinner Party Tonight.—Pleased With City.

Seymour is host today to almost eight hundred soldiers of the Twenty-third Regiment of United States Infantry. The city was decorated in honor of their coming and from every store and many residences flags and national colors were exhibited. A great crowd from the city, county and adjoining counties were here to witness the arrival of the soldiers. The coming of the Twenty-third has attracted more attention than any event in Seymour for years.

The plans which were announced previously were carried out. The officers of the commercial club kept in close touch with the progress of the march from Vallonia here and about an hour before the regiment reached the city the whistle of the Blish Milling Company gave six long blasts as the signal. Hundreds of people living outside the city came early. When the whistle sounded people here came down town and soon the streets were crowded. Both sides of Second and Chestnut streets were lined, and hundreds of school children assembled along South Walnut street.

The advance guard reached the city about 9 o'clock and gave the information that the soldiers were on their way. The reception committee composed of Mayor Allen Swope, Clark Davis, secretary of the commercial club, Judge John M. Lewis, Frank Ross and L. R. Fosgate drove in automobiles to the Brownstown road to meet the visitors. Claude Carter, captain of the Seymour Battalion, was the first to greet Colonel Edwin F. Glenn and his staff.

The officers preceded the soldiers. The officers are Col. Glenn, Captain George S. Goodale, adjutant, Captain L. L. Brewer, commissary, Captain E. S. Stayer, quartermaster, Major C. B. Hegadorn, of the first Battalion, Major William Weigel, second Battalion and Major D. E. Holley, third Battalion. In the regiment there are three battalions of four captains each. There are a total of 732 soldiers and 32 officers. Captain R. P. Van Camp, of Indianapolis, is also traveling with the regiment.

After the greetings were exchanged by the officers and the reception committee arrangements were briefly discussed regarding the march through the city. The automobiles led the way and preceded the soldiers some distance in order that they might not be troubled with the dust from the machines.

The regiment left Vallonia about six o'clock this morning marching the fifteen miles in about five and one-half hours. When marching the soldiers are permitted to rest ten minutes each hour.

About forty automobiles assembled on South Walnut street and joined in the march to the park. Most of the machines were decorated with flags. The soldiers marched from Walnut to Bruce, one block east on Bruce to Chestnut, north on Chestnut to Second, east on Second to Ewing, north on Ewing to Seventh and then to the park.

A large crowd of people went to park to witness the preparations for camp. Every part of the work is done according to system and not a move is lost. The tents were pitched in a remarkably short period of time, which demonstrates the amount of work that can be done by one regiment of the army. With the soldiers were two ambulance and a number of escort wagons. In the escort wagons the tents and other equipment were carried.

The day is being observed as a holiday by most of the factories in the city. This was done in order that the employees might have an opportunity to see the soldiers and visit their quarters at the park. The schools were dismissed shortly before the soldiers reached the city and were closed for the day about 3 o'clock this afternoon. Hundreds of pupils from the district schools were here. Cortland schools dismissed and were on the ground one hundred strong. They were brought to the city in three large wagons. The Newkirk school of sixty pupils was also dismissed. Several other schools were closed and the pupils and their teachers were here.

The boy and girl scouts of Crothersville and Brownstown were here in charge of Dr. H. P. Butts. The youngsters were much interested in the movements of the soldiers as they have been given some training along this line.

Col. Glenn and his staff will be honored guests at a dinner party tonight at the New Lynn hotel. Judge O. H. Montgomery will be toast master. Addresses will be made by Judge John M. Lewis and Mayor Swope. It was first planned to have the Mayor welcome the soldiers upon their arrival at the park but this plan was changed when it was found the soldiers were anxious to pitch their tents and get ready for dinner.

Within five minutes after the soldiers arrived at the park the grounds had changed into a camping ground. All the tents were up in about six or seven minutes after the work began. This afternoon the regular drills were conducted.

The soldiers declared that they have had a pleasant trip, but found march much more difficult from Vallonia to Seymour than from Salem to Vallonia on account of the heavy dust. They spent the afternoon according to their own wishes, and many of them came down town. In one corner, however, were twelve men who were not permitted to enjoy the liberties allowed the others. These particular men were in the guard house, having been sent there for violation of rules. Some of them failed to answer roll call at the proper times and a few were found guilty of intoxication.

The park was filled with visitors during the afternoon, watching the work of the camp.

HEAVY MAIL

Soldiers Glad to Receive Letters and Papers From Home.

That the soldiers who are camping at the city park are anxious to hear from home was shown today by the eagerness with which they received their mail. And there was a bunch of it for the boys. This was the largest place visited since the departure from French Lick, where they spent a week and many of the soldiers had their mail sent here.

The local post office had several sacks of letters and papers that went to the park. This afternoon after the mail was distributed one could see the boys sitting under the trees reading letters written on the kind of stationery which told who the correspondent was. Occasionally a smile would come over their faces and parts of the letters were frequently read to some of their comrades. Their home papers were also read carefully and when they were called away before finishing the pages the papers were tucked carefully away in an inside coat pocket where they were safe until time could be found to read them.

PLAY BALL GAME

Soldiers and Local Team Battle on West Second Street.

One of the features of the entertainment for the soldiers, here was the base ball game this afternoon. The contest was played at the grounds on West Second street and was witnessed by a large number of local people. The soldiers were much interested in the game and many of them were present to root for their team.

The regiment's team is regarded as very good and the soldiers were counting upon a winning score. Before the players left the city park they "warmed up" and expected a hard game. There are quite a number of good ball players in the regiment and in several places games have been played and the soldiers have won.

The lineup for the local team was as follows: Lucas c; Bennett p; McOsker ss; Reil 1st; Gardner 2nd; Fletcher 3rd; Swope lf; Sage cf; Herman rf.

The players for the regiment were: Harrison lf; Spier cf; Swain rf; Johnson ss; Speyer c; Cody st; Duncan 2nd; Yount 3rd; Roe p.

At the end of the first inning the game was 9-3 in favor of the regiment.

LIVED IN THIS COUNTY

George Williams of 23rd., Enjoyed Trip Here.

There was probably not a soldier in the Twenty-third regiment who enjoyed the "hike" in this county more than George Williams, of Company M. Williams is a former Jackson county boy having lived until a few years ago near Vallonia. He saw a number of his old friends while in the west part of the county, and has had several pleasant chats with his acquaintances here. Williams joined the army two years ago at Bedford.

Child Poisoned.

The eighteen-months-old son of Charles A. Seabright, of Washington, who recently organized the Moose lodge here, is near death's door because of its eating a quantity of Diamond dye. The little tot was playing about the feet of its mother who was using the dye and in an unguarded moment, swallowed a quantity. It soon became ill and physicians were summoned who succeeded in causing it to cast off a portion of the poison. The child is still in a dangerous condition.

GAMBLERS DEFY THE STATE LAW

Bookmakers Work in the Open at the New Racing Park Recently Opened Near Porter.

PAID $25 FOR PRIVILEGE

Messengers Circulate Among Women in Grandstand Exhibiting Programs Containing Odds.

Valparaiso, Ind., October 17.—Chicago gamblers bid defiance to the laws of Indiana and openly made "hand books" at the first day of the race meeting at Mineral Springs park, near Porter, yesterday afternoon. There were thousands of spectators from Chicago and Indiana at the races and the betting was so open and bold that messengers circulated among the women in the grand stand, exhibited programs containing the odds and accepted wagers from the women, in the betting shed there were nineteen "hand books" operated by three men each which accepted every wager offered, and there was no effort at any time in the afternoon to prevent operations. The book makers paid $25 a book for the privilege of operating and the few "piker" books that attempted to operate without paying tribute were closed and their owners were escorted to the gates and told not to return until they were prepared to pay for operating.

WILL SPEAK HERE

Albert J. Beveridge Scheduled for Address Next Week.

Albert J. Beveridge will deliver an address here Thursday afternoon, October 24, according to information received Wednesday night by Noble Moore, township chairman. The progressive speaking bureau promised the local progressives some time ago that Mr. Beveridge would be sent here for an address, but when a request was made for the date no definite answer was given.

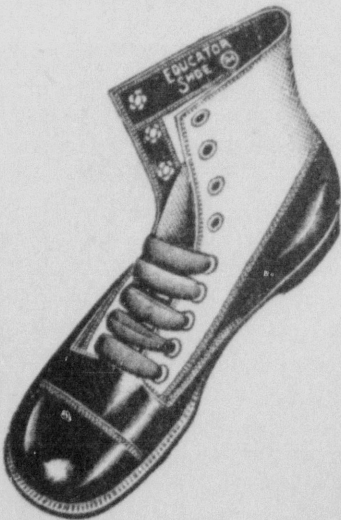

Mr. Moore took the question up with the district chairman and when he was in Indianapolis Wednesday he used his influence to have Mr. Beveridge sent to Seymour. According to the present plans he will speak here in the afternoon.

MEETS WITH SUCCESS

Chautauqua Committee Pleased With The Success.

The members of the chautauqua committee taking stock for the chautauqua in Seymour next summer, are pleased with their success thus far. They declare that the people of the city who have been asked to subscribe to the association have expressed a willingness to assist and are anxious that the plan succeed.

The meeting will be held Friday night at the Library when the committee will give a report of the work done. It is known that a considerable amount can yet be secured, and one member of the committee stated that he had every reason to believe that a sufficient guarantee fund could be raised. All stock subscribed may not be collected and is held only as a guarantee for the talent. One half of it will be collected and if it is not used will be returned to the stockholders. It is generally believed that the patronage to the chautauqua would be sufficiently large to pay all expenses, but as it is a new proposition here the stock subscription plan was decided upon.

HOADLEY'S

COL. ROOSEVELT OUT OF DANGER

Surgeons Have Nothing But Good Reports.

MRS. ROOSEVELT IN CHARGE

Upon Arriving at the Hospital in Chicago Where Her Distinguished Husband Is Recovering From Shock of Crank's Murderous Shot, Wife of ex-President Immediately Excluded Visitors and Took Charge of Patient.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Such steady gain is being made by Colonel Roosevelt that the attending surgeons are more hopeful for his recovery than they have been at any time since he was shot last Monday night by John Schrank, a New York crank, who had followed the colonel to Milwaukee and there shot him in the breast as he was leaving his hotel to go to a theater to make a speech.

In an examination made at Mercy hospital the colonel's pulse and respiration were shown to be nearly normal, the general condition good and the patient cheerful and resting well. That the surgeons themselves are more cheerful than they have been is shown in a bit of repartee while the colonel was being examined. As he was being rolled over the colonel exclaimed with a grin: "I move with greater agility than I have for a couple of days."

"We are breathing more easily, too," came the quick reply from Dr. J. B. Murphy.

The surgeons have made known the result of the last X-ray examination. The pictures showed the ball lodged up against the fourth rib. It could not be determined by the doctors in this picture whether the rib had been splintered or not. In fact, there was a division of opinion of the medical men in this particular.

The surgeons also expressed the belief that tomorrow will settle definitely whether the bullet fired by Schrank will cause trouble. If there are no symptoms of blood poisoning by that time the surgeons believe that nature will segregate the ball from the adjoining tissues and that there will be no danger from blood poisoning. In which event in all probability the bullet will never be extracted.

Mrs. Roosevelt's first move after her arrival here was to decree that the colonel must see no visitors except the members of his family. Once or twice she has made exceptions, but otherwise she has adhered firmly to her resolution. The colonel was "feeling fine" and ready to receive visitors, but Mrs. Roosevelt gave him no opportunity to pass upon her ruling, for she made it on her own authority and saw to it that it was enforced.

She received the cards and messages for her husband and sent back her replies, with the result that the colonel himself did not know who wished to see him.

There is little in the appearance of the patient to indicate he is not in his usual health.

When Mrs. Roosevelt reached the hospital the colonel greeted his wife with a gay "Hello." After greeting the children the colonel again reassured the whole family by having read the last of the bulletins of the surgeons.

The husband and father then attempted to tell the family just "how it happened," but a warning came through the door from one of the doctors that the patient must not excite himself unnecessarily, and the talk was limited to family circle happenings. With the exception of Mrs. Roosevelt the other members of the family presently left the hospital. They will stay with friends in the immediate vicinity of the hospital. A room has been provided for Mrs. Roosevelt in the hospital adjoining that in which the colonel lies.

ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE

Was Conveyed to People by Beveridge in Louisville Speech.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 17.—For over an hour ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana reviewed the life of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, chieftain of the Progressive party, before 5,000 auditors last night at Phoenix hall.

The ex-senator brought from the wounded leader a message to the people of that country, in which he said that it mattered little whether he survived or fell, that the cause was still there, and in the event that one standard bearer fell by the wayside, the others would take his place until the victory had been won.

MEXICO STIRRED BY A NEW REVOLUTION

Nephew of Diaz Now In Rebellion.

Tampico, Mexico, Oct. 17.—The nephew of former President Diaz, Colonel Felix Diaz, is in complete possession of Vera Cruz, the most important port in the republic of Mexico, and has raised a new standard of rebellion. Diaz has proclaimed himself commander-in-chief of all the rebel forces in Mexico, with the title of general. Nearly the entire state of Vera Cruz has gone over to young Diaz.

Before 6 o'clock last evening every federal soldier in the city garrison, the police department, port hospital corps and firemen and more than a thousand new volunteers had enlisted and taken the oath of allegiance under Diaz. In all, the new revolutionary leader has more than 2,000 men under his banner in Vera Cruz alone. It is the most serious insurrection that has broken out in Mexico since Madero overthrew the government of the present rebel leader's uncle. Diaz appears to be in constant communication with the other rebel leaders throughout Mexico.

CHAMPIONS OF THE DIAMOND

In a Bitterly Fought Battle For the Deciding Game in the Wonderful Series, the Opposing Teams Run the Game Over Into Ten Innings, Maintaining the Interest Right Up to the Very Last Moment.

Giants... 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1—2 9 3
Red Sox... 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 2—3 7 2
Batteries—Mathewson, Meyers; Bedient, Wood and Cady.

Boston, Oct. 17.—In a ten-inning contest the Boston Red Sox beat the New York Giants by a score of 3 to 2 and thus became the champions of the diamond world. The championship became theirs in the most teeming and spectacular of all world's series, a series which included eight games and was won by four games to three. But the final defeat was bitter. Mathewson, the wonderful veteran, pitched gamely and effectively.

With the game in the Giants' grasp all Matty wanted was good support to insure victory. But he did not get it. A muffed fly by Snodgrass and the failure of either of two men, Merkle and Meyers, to take a foul fly which was easy to catch were misplays in the final inning which brought defeat to the Giants and victory to the Red Sox.

With all the mistakes in fielding that the Giants made and occasional other mistakes, the success won by the Red Sox was over a hardy, aggressive and courageous rival. Before they frittered the game away, however, the Giants did a good deal of sharp fielding in pinches and helped Mathewson to return the Boston to the field scoreless.

It was not until a pinch hitter, Henrichsen, was brought in that the Red Sox were able to hurl a run across the plate. Their first tally was due to a two-bagger by Henrichsen. Henrichsen's hit tied the score in the seventh inning and sent in a man who had reached a base because an outfield ball was allowed to fall uncaught.

Wood succeeded Bedient in the eighth inning and was rapped for an earned run in the tenth. Bedient was hit hard, but kept the hits scattered. It was Murray who batted in New York's first run, and it was Murray who made a two-bagger in the tenth and made the second run on a hit by Merkle.

Profits of the Game.

The attendance was 17,034; receipts, $30,500; national commission's share, $3,050; each club's share, $13,725. Each club's share of the whole series was $147,028.85.

The national commission's share, $49,083.30.

The total players' share, derived from the first four games only, $147,471.69.

Boston players, as winners, share 60 per cent, or $88,543.01.

New York players, as losers, share $59,028.69.

Each Red Sox player, of whom twenty-two were eligible, receives $4,024.68.

Each Giant player, of whom twenty-three were eligible, receives $2,566.46.

The figures in every case are greater than those for any previous world's series.

As soon as the winning run was scored Manager McGraw of the Giants made a bee line for the Red Sox bench to congratulate Manager Stahl. McGraw had taken defeat in a sportsmanlike manner and was about to offer his hand to the Boston leader, when a rowdy, stepping up behind McGraw, pushed him so hard that McGraw almost fell into the Red Sox pit. This treatment quickly riled McGraw, who turned upon his assailant and dealt him a stinging blow on the nose. A big crowd of Boston rooters promptly sided with the New York manager, who then shook hands with Stahl, and said:

"You've won the world series, and I wish you luck. We made errors that were fatal, but that is baseball, as you know. It has been a great series, but I am glad that it is over. The strain on my players was beginning to tell." McGraw, however, as he walked away after congratulating Stahl, showed that he was bitterly disappointed.

The Giants were a gloomy lot as they realized that they had been beaten out of the lion's share of the coin. Snodgrass looked as if he had lost his last friend on earth. He said he could not account for his miff of Engle's walloping. He declared that he judged the ball perfectly, but somehow the leather twisted out of his glove just as he was convinced that he had it cinched. Chief Meyers said that Mathewson deserved to win, for he showed his best quality and worked like a Trojan.

When Yerkes scored the winning run on Gardner's long fly to Devore the crowd jumped out of the stands and rushed for the Boston bench. Yerkes, Speaker, Stahl, Lewis, Wood, Engle and others of the Red Sox were hugged and kissed by frenzied men. The new world's champions struggled through the mob to their bench, where 5,000 Hub fans gave three cheers and a tiger for each member of the victorious team.

Bulgaria Has Declared War On Turkey.

London, Oct. 17.—According to dispatches received here from Sofia, Bulgaria has declared war against Turkey. The reports are unconfirmed as yet, but as an indication of their probable truth dispatches from Constantinople tell of the departure from the capitals of Greece, Bulgaria and Serbia of the Turkish ministers accredited to them. The Constantinople dispatches add that the Ottoman representatives did not even ask for their passports, the omission being made purposely as an affront to the allies.

The Ottoman government characterizes as "insolent" the representatives of the allies calling upon the porte for reforms in Macedonia, and has given the governments signing the note twenty-four hours in which to apologize for it.

Greece's demand for the release of the Greek vessels seized by Turkey was entirely ignored by the sultan's government.

Dispatches from Podgoritz, the base of one of the Montenegrin armies of invasion, announce that General Martinovitch has captured Mt. Mourlach, a fortified post opposite Tarakach.

The northern Montenegrin army has retaken Berana. The Turks were driven out after two days' fighting, and, according to the dispatches, which come from Montenegrin sources, lost 700 prisoners besides fourteen guns and large amounts of supplies.

Turko-Italian War Ended.

Geneva, Oct. 17.—The treaty of peace between Italy and Turkey will be signed tomorrow morning. The delegates are preparing the legal letters for the exchanges.

WHAT IT MEANS

Conclusion of Peace Treaty May Affect New Complication.

Paris, Oct. 17.—The conclusion of peace between Turkey and Italy has caused a feeling of general relief, as it removes the grave possibility of complications arising out of the Balkan crisis. It leaves Turkey free to prosecute war with her neighbors and enables Italy to take her place in the concert of the powers.

The great European nations under the leadership of France are exerting every effort to localize the conflict, which momentarily threatens to become general along the frontiers of Bulgaria, Serbia, Montenegro and Greece.

The powers thus far remain firm in their determination not to allow any change in the territorial situation in the Balkans when the war is over, no matter what may be its result. At the same time they call on Turkey to carry out the promised reforms.

IDENTIFICATION OF DOCUMENTS

Many Witnesses Called In the Dynamite Trial.

STENOGRAPHERS ON THE STAND

Among the Many Persons Connected With the Iron Workers' Union Called by the Government to Testify Concerning Letters, Telegrams and Other Documents, Were a Couple of Young Women of Union's Office.

Indianapolis, Oct. 17.—The time of the federal court continues to be taken up with identification of letters, telegrams and documents from the offices of the iron workers or brought here by witnesses under subpoenas. The examination of Miss Haley, stenographer to John J. McNamara, was completed last evening, but the cross-examination went over till today on request of the attorneys for the defense. Among the witnesses were local officers of the iron workers' unions in various parts of the country and a number of letters passing between them and President Ryan were identified. The first of these was Thomas Burk, former business agent of local No. 60, at Buffalo. Burk had been ordered to produce copies of certain correspondence. He testified that he had made search for this, but had not been able to find it. Burk, however, identified an exhibit of the government as being a letter written to Ryan at his direction. He also identified a carbon copy of another letter as being a copy of the reply he had received.

Miss Jessie Minnick, from October, 1907, to May, 1908, a stenographer at the union's offices, also was used as a witness to identify a number of letters, among these being letters from Webb and Farrell of New York; also several letters dictated to her by J. J. McNamara. On one of the Farrell letters was the indorsement "ex board," which Miss Minnick testified was in the handwriting of J. J. McNamara.

United States Senator John W. Kern thus far in the progress of the dynamite conspiracy case in federal court has done nearly all the questioning of witnesses on cross-examination by the defense, and it is said that Kern is to continue to do the major part of the court work for the defense. With only three or four exceptions, all the one hundred and twenty-five witnesses used by the government in the first two weeks of the trial have been cross-examined by Senator Kern. About 450 government witnesses are yet to be called.

That he has been doing more work and is to do more than he expected when he entered the case, is admitted by Senator Kern.

BROUGHT BACK

Man Wanted at Shirley For Murder Five Years Ago Found at Cincinnati.

Victim of Accidental Shot.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 17.—Mrs. John McCord, wife of a farmer living south of the city, was accidentally shot and killed when her husband, who had been cleaning a shotgun, struck the trigger against a chair, discharging one barrel. The load of shot struck his wife in the right breast. Her right lung was torn to pieces by the charge and she died in a few minutes.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 17.—The fourth trial of William Snoddy, charged with whitecapping, has been set for Nov. 18. He is a brother of Tobe Snoddy, convicted of the same offense some time ago. Three special attorneys have been engaged by the state to assist in the prosecution.

Sentence Was Reserved.

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 17.—Charles Zinn, aged twenty-three, was found guilty in the circuit court on a statutory charge filed against him because of his marriage to his half-sister, Miss Ethel Zinn, aged nineteen, on Sept. 12. The court reserved sentence.

DEFENDANT WOULDN'T FACE MRS. ROSENTHAL

Becker's Eyes Fell Before Widow of Alleged Victim.

New York, Oct. 17.—In the trial of Lieutenant Becker there was an episode that will hardly be forgotten by those who took part in it and those who looked and listened. This was when Mrs. Lillian Rosenthal, widow of the murdered gambler, looked steadily at Becker and swore that she was present when Becker in the Elks club a few months before the murder, put his arm around her husband's shoulder and said: "Cheer up. Everything will be all right."

The jurors, who had been following every word of Mrs. Rosenthal's composed but earnest story, were on tip-toe as they leaned toward the witness. Several turned their heads and watched Becker's face as Mrs. Rosenthal went on with her testimony about the raid that the lieutenant made on the gambling house and the reply he made to her surprised questions as to what it all meant, said, "It had to be Herman or me. Tell Herman he don't owe me anything. Tell him to go down and see that man and tell him we are square."

For the first time since the trial opened, Lieutenant Becker's eyes roved from a witness. He looked toward the ceiling or at the table in front of him, and when Mrs. Rosenthal at times turned from the jurors to fix her eyes on him he looked away. The muscles of his throat were moving as if he was swallowing hard. And when Mr. McIntyre, a little later, would have persisted with the cross-examination of Mrs. Rosenthal, Becker ordered his lawyer to stop.

"Let her go," he whispered, audibly. With the testimony of Mrs. Rosenthal and with the testimony of numerous disinterested witnesses that Becker and Rose, in the months before the murder, met frequently at Rose's house, at the Union Square hotel, and at Luchow's restaurant, and that Becker was in communication with Rose after the murder, the state approached the completion of its case.

Highway Robber Sentenced.

from farming. I have always made money on this fine 320-acre farm, and have taken good care of it. I don't want to rent it, so have decided to sell. It is 3 1/2 miles from Benkelman, on main road, with R. F. D. and telephone. 5 room house; big new barn; nice young orchard, fenced with woven wire; shade trees in yard. All but 60 acres tillable. Top soil 2 feet deep. Finest neighbors in the world—all well-to-do folks. I want $40 an acre. (Some farms no better sold for $50.) That is the least dollar that will buy it. That is $12,800 and I want all cash. If you can't pay all cash, and need some time, my agent says he can arrange a $5000 five year loan. Write him for further particulars and photographs. He is Henry G. Matteson, Lock Box 986 Benkelman, Nebraska. This is a good farm and will make you a nice home.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

PICTURES OF THE TIME.

The newspapers give descriptions of two recent balls—the Stuyvesant Fish and the Vanderbilt, both at Newport—so gorgeous in their display as to have staggered the imagination of a generation or two ago.

There was the Stuyvesant Fish. It cost $100,000. The features included electric fountains with varicolored waters, tropical water plants, countless roses of pink and red, thousands of goldfish in flashing fountains, myriads of butterflies flitting about purple lights, French mirrors, servitors dressed in the correct livery of Louis XVI., dances of nymphs and hundreds of white doves billing and cooing about the dancers.

And the Vanderbilt. It followed the Fish orgy and was intended to outdo it. It cost $120,000. Priceless decorations adorned the walls, myriads of artistic lights, reproductions of minarets and domes blazing with color transformed Beaulieu, the Vanderbilt estate, into a veritable dreamland. Then with a magic wand—$5,000—a real play, "The Merry Countess," was brought direct from New York to a specially erected theater. In the final dance "diamond bedecked slippers glided over the ball-room floor."

Riotous, lavish, foolish, are the first adjectives that spring to one's speech. To be sure, the shopkeepers and workmen who prepared the features were well paid, and the money went into the channels of circulation, but—Were there no contrasting pictures showing a better disposition of surplus money one might despair of the time.

Happily there are other pictures. The same newspaper that told of the fish exhibition told of the wedding reception of Richard Harding Davis and Bessie McCoy, who also have money, but better taste and disposition in the spending of it. They gave 500 tired New York mothers and their heat fagged children an outing on Coney Island and a free ride on the ocean.

And—It told of Henry C. Frick's lawn party in honor of his daughter. Frick is richer than Fish, but his way was to invite the whole population of Beverly to have a good time.

Also—It told of a New York luncheon where moneyed men and heads of benevolent societies conferred as to how they might help the poor of the east side.

Which things renew one's faith in his fellows high and low.

There are others besides the Fish and Vanderbilt coteries.

The latter are mere incidents in our civilization. They are sated housewives on the rim of the wheel of progress.

J. W. Copeland, of Dayton, Ohio, purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for his boy who had a cold, and before the bottle was all used the boy's cold was gone. Is that not better than to pay a five dollar doctor's bill? For sale by all dealers. Advertisement.

Discover Your Fault.

No business man will voluntarily give up a good thing. If you think you have missed your opportunity that by any chance there is anything against you except yourself, go back over your business days and dig up the facts. Nothing will speak quite so strongly as the facts of a case, even in your own case, and one of the hardest things to do is to accuse yourself of foolishness, wrongdoing or even untactfulness. But if you can be fair to yourself about yourself you will find that it is all your own fault.

Useless Embellishment.

AMERICAN FARMERS ARE NOT "BUNCOED"

BUY FARM IMPLEMENTS CHEAPER THAN CANADIAN FARMERS.

CAMPAIGN LIE IS NAILED

Investigation by State Department Gives Facts and Figures, and Michigan Manufacturing Firm Adds Evidence.

"Farmers Buncoed by the High Tariff," is the title of a publication industriously circulated among farmers by the Tariff Reform bureau of New York, a free trade annex of the Democratic party.

It asserts that American-made farm implements are sold in Canada at a lower price than they are obtainable by American farmers. The purpose of the statement is to prove that the American farmers are made to suffer through the operation of the protective tariff laws.

The statement is false. Plows, planters, cultivators and other farm implements made in the United States cost twenty-five per cent. more in Canada than in this country.

The free trade advocates who try to mislead the American farmer do not know, apparently, that there is a so-called anti-dumping law in Canada whereby an American manufacturer cannot sell in that country at a lower price than at home.

Official Facts and Figures.

In addition to this, they are also ignorant of the fact that the United States government, through its board of trade relations in the state department, has made a thorough investigation which disproves the false assertion. It issued under date of May 16, 1910, a document entitled "Comparison of Prices of Agricultural Implements in Canada and the United States," which shows that Canadian farmers pay more for American farm machinery than is paid by the American farmers. Here are some of the figures:

14-inch, steel-beam walking plow—price in North Dakota, $22; price in Manitoba, $25.

14-inch sulky plow with lift—price in Ohio, $40; price in Ontario, $55.

16-inch North Dakota sulky plow—price in North Dakota, $52; price in Manitoba, $60.

17-tooth spring tooth harrow—price in Ohio and Michigan, $17; price in Ontario, $22.

3-foot, 16-inch disk harrow—price in North Dakota, $38; price in Manitoba, $45.

10-foot, 20 single disk Kentucky drill—price in North Dakota, $125; price in Manitoba, $140.

Riding cultivator, portable axle—price in Ohio and Michigan, $28; price in Ontario, $38.

Hay loader, rake bar—price in Ohio and Michigan, $60; price in Ontario, $70.

First grade farm wagon—price in North Dakota, $85; price in Manitoba, $106.

Evidence Offered With Proof.

Evidence to the same effect is given by the Gale Manufacturing company of Albion, Mich., which was specifically charged by the free trade advocates with selling goods more cheaply to Canadian farmers than to American farmers.

The secretary and general manager of the company, under date of August 30, 1912, wrote to the Tariff Reform club denying the charge and threatening to sue for damages unless the assertion was promptly retracted. The firm also wrote to the Republican national committee as follows:

"Plows, planters, cultivators and other farm machinery made in the United States cost 25 per cent. more in Canada than in this country. You can stand on this statement, and if it is challenged we can produce proof."

The proof mentioned in this letter consists of letters from retail dealers throughout Canada quoting the prices at which the products of the Michigan factory are sold to Canadian farmers. These figures agree substantially with those given in the government publication. For instance, a planter which sells in Detroit for $40 costs $45 in Windsor, less than a mile away across the Detroit river, and a cultivator which sells in Detroit for $30 cannot be bought in Windsor for less than $36.

As soon as free trade statements are subjected to the cold analysis of investigation their falsity is shown. It is an old proverb that a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is putting on its boots. It is important, therefore, that farmers who have heard the untruths of the free traders should promptly learn the real facts in the case.

The Kind of a Man He Is.

A few months ago a little Polish girl at Erie, Pa., wrote this letter to President Taft:

Dear Mr. President:—Myself and little brother are cold and hungry. Mother is in jail. We are without food and wood. Dear Mr. President, can't you help us?"

What did the president do? Excuse himself on the ground of official dignity, or pre-occupation? No. He answered the letter with his own hand, enclosing a crisp bill; telegraphed the authorities at Erie, who investigated the case, and before sun-down returned the mother to her sorrowing children.

By the way, did you ever read or hear of Colonel Roosevelt doing as gentle, kindly, tenderhearted thing like that?

THE CAT'S USEFUL WHISKERS.

We are apt to think that the cat's ability to see in the dark is due entirely to its eyes, but competent authority assures us that the feline's power in this respect is due almost as much to its "whiskers." These delicate hairs that project from the muzzle of the cat family are wonderful mechanisms, says Harper's Weekly. Each one grows from a follicle or gland, nerved to the utmost sensibility. Its slightest contact with any obstacle is instantly felt by the animal, though the hair itself may be tough and insensible. The exaggerated whiskers on the muzzle often project to such a distance that from point to point they indicate the exact width of the body of the beast. Consider the lion stealing through the jungle at night in search of prey, when the least stir of a twig gives alarm. The lion's whiskers indicate through the nicest nerves, any object that may be in his path. A touch stops him short before pushing through some close thicket where the rustling leaves and boughs would betray his presence. Wherever his head may be thrust without a warning from the vibrissae there his body may pass noiselessly. It is the aid given him by his whiskers, in conjunction with the soft cushions of his feet, that enables him to proceed as silently as the snake.

Over in England they dare go further than in this country in the matter of regulating personal habits and practices for the general good. The London borough of Paddington has just put into effect regulations requiring that the floors of all living rooms in dwellings shall be swept at least once a week, and that the windows of all sleeping rooms shall be opened for an hour each morning and afternoon, except when the weather is inclement or the room occupied by a sick person to whom exposure would be harmful. The penalty for violation of the regulations is a fine of five pounds. This is the most modern and drastic attempt that has yet been made to force the people to conform more strictly to the recognized rules of health. Heretofore, the municipality has assumed that domestic cleanliness and household ventilation were matters within the discretion of the individual, except where conditions existed that were a distinct menace to public health or had become a public nuisance. There seems, however, no inconsistency in the attitude of a municipality that where people will not regard the ordinary rules of cleanliness it is its duty to compel them to do so.

The greatness of the future will not depend upon its science, its invention, its industry, its trade, its knowledge, or any of these material things. Our glory must rest not upon the physical, but upon the spiritual. That has been the backing of all great reforms and upward movements recorded in history. It has been the vital principle of all great and true lives. And what is this spiritual upon which all true progress is built? It is faith, love, hope, friendship, unselfishness. There is no fact in everyday life sure and steadfast as this. We may grow in material things, but it is not true growth unless we grow in spiritual things, too, says the Ohio State Journal. Whoever spends his life in material progress, in making money and doing a great business, is no agent of or friend of his community unless he embodies these spiritual qualities in his work. The only real enterprise consists in its alliance with these virtues of the spirit. One can build the tallest structures, the biggest mill, or the longest railroad, but he is a poor agent of the public good if he does not unite in his work these great moral virtues.

It is now announced that a disgruntled employe destroyed Mona Lisa's inscrutable smiles with sulphuric acid. Which settles the inscrutability of the smile for all time, as the pleasantness of no mystery can survive a sulphuric acid bath.

It is announced that dictators of fashion intend to compel us to wear such costumes as were worn during the reign of terror in Paris. The dictators of fashion appear to be absolutely merciless.

Isn't it funny that while tight skirts mean less material and less material means less expense, it isn't the thrifty husband that favors them, but the spendthrift bachelor.

A Boston doctor says that soap is not clean. If he refers to that usually found in hotel washrooms, he is everlastingly right.

A New York physician is employing shin bones to cure hunchbacks. Samson employed a jawbone to more fatal ends. The world do move.

Miss Billie Burke says that for the latest fashion in dressing the hair, the ears should be covered. Is it as loud as all that?

Even an epidemic of sidewhiskers may be lived through somehow.

Sick Women

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured many cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are five letters from southern women which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.

Elliston, Va.—"I feel it my duty to express my thanks to you and your great medicine. I was a sufferer from female troubles and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time. Now I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what these medicines have done for me and I will always speak a good word for them."—Mrs. ROBERT BLANKENSHIP, Elliston, Montgomery Co., Va.

LETTER FROM LOUISIANA.

New Orleans, La.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with hot flashes, weak and dizzy feelings, backache and irregularities. I would get up in the morning feeling tired and not fit to do anything. Since I have been taking your Compound and Blood Purifier I feel all right. Your medicines are worth their weight in gold."—Mrs. GASTON BLONDEAU, 1541 Polymnia St., New Orleans, La.

LETTER FROM FLORIDA.

Wauchula, Fla.—"Some time ago I wrote to you giving you my symptoms, headache, backache, bearing-down, and discomfort in walking, caused by female troubles. I got two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash and that was all I used to make me a well woman. I am satisfied that if I had done like a good many women, and had not taken your remedies, I would have been a great sufferer. But I started in time with the right medicine and got well. It did not cost very much either. I feel that you are a friend to all women and I would rather use your remedies than have a doctor."—Mrs. MATTIE HODSON, Box 409, Wauchula, Florida.

LETTER FROM WEST VIRGINIA.

Martinsburg, W. Va.—"I am glad to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done wonders for my mother, daughter and myself. I have told dozens of people about it and my daughter says that when she hears a girl complaining with cramps, she tells her to take your Compound."—Mrs. MARY A. HOCKENBERRY, 712 N. 3rd St., Martinsburg, W. Va.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.

Newport News, Va.—"About five years ago I was troubled with such pains and bloating every month that I would have to go to bed. A friend told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. The medicine strengthened me in every way and my doctor approved of my taking it. I will be glad if my testimony will help some one who is suffering from female weakness."—Mrs. W. J. BLAYTON, 1029 Hampton Ave., Newport News, Va.

Why don't you try this reliable remedy?

Baby's Clothes Must be Soft and Snowy White

The greatest joy of the careful, painstaking and proud mother is to see her baby's clothes soft and clean and snowy white.

Ordinary soap often leaves them yellow or streaky and lacking that much to be desired freshness and sweetness. Then again there is always that "bugbear" of dainty clothes being rotted and burned out by strong chemicals and "dirt starters." All these difficulties are eliminated by the use of

CHAPTER XVII.

The woman in the Corridor. The insistent rattle of gravel on the screen woke me. I arose, put on the white flannel, tied the ribbon around my head with fingers that were far from steady, and picked up my racket. The tennis was going to be a farce. My wrists were limp, my shoulders like lead, my head chaos. Out of the chaos persisted one thought. But I tried not to ponder too much on that adventure of the night before until Hap had had a chance to explain.

He was tapping the balls into the air as I came across the strip of lawn. He met me half way.

"I've an explanation to make before we begin," he said.

I know I went red, but he was not looking at me. He led the way to a rustic bench that ran the length of the court, and waited for me to sit down.

"I want to tell you why I happened to be in your room this morning," he said quite frankly. The tone robbed his words of an embarrassment. I could even let my face relax. "Perhaps first you'd like to know that we got Winthrop out on bail," he went on, "although it took the combined efforts of Hazard money and Crowninshield influence to do it. We had to drag a judge away from a poker game and my mother to jail at midnight to go bail."

"But Mr. Abbott's out? He's at home?" I questioned.

"Yes," he answered. "Oh, it's a lot of tommyrot. They have nothing against him. A mud-headed detective pounced upon the first person he saw, which happened to be Winthrop, shot him in the arm, and found some family jewels in his safe."

"Jewels!" I exclaimed.

"I might as well tell you—you'll see it in the newspapers. They mean nothing, except the lively imaginations of the police connect them with the jewel robberies we've been reading about."

"How absurd! But, of course, Mr. Abbott can prove he didn't steal them? The people who have been robbed will have to identify their property, and there you are! If they are Mr. Abbott's family jewels, they are not any one else's. It's ridiculously simple, isn't it?"

"It is," he agreed. He narrowed his eyes and stared into space for a while, then rose and began pacing in front of me. What he was trying to figure in, or out, was that emerald bracelet which I didn't know about, and of which he had not the slightest intention of telling me. It was incriminating evidence against Winthrop.

"What does Mr. Crowninshield think?" I asked.

"Oh, you know how he is—a regular clam. Thinks a good deal and says nothing. He's inclined to treat the whole thing as a joke, except—"

"Except what?"

He sat down suddenly.

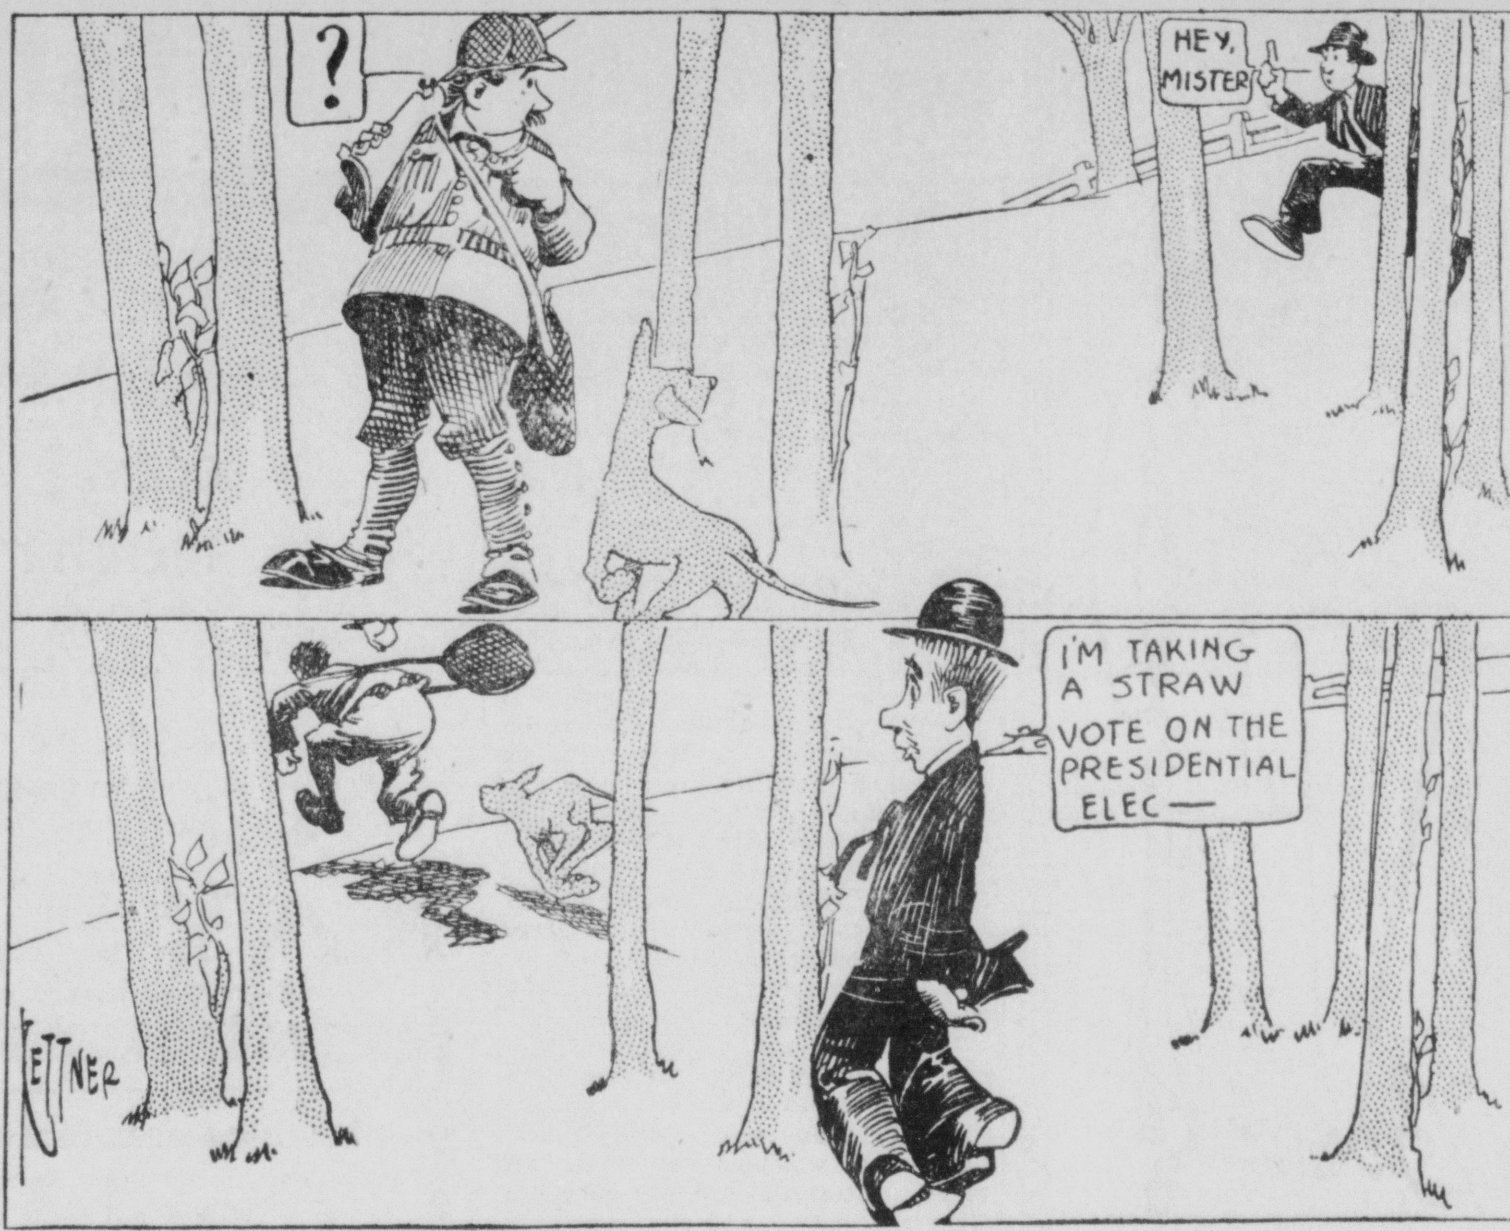

"I'm forgetting to tell you my exciting little story," he said, and the question passed unanswered. "We got home about two, all dead tired. I took Winthrop home and wanted to stay with him, but he wouldn't have it. It didn't take me long to go to sleep. Well, something woke me—what, I don't know—but it was odd, for I never wake up suddenly. I sat up, in bed and listened. At first I could only hear the surf, and then I caught another sound, an annoying little rasp I couldn't explain to myself. I thought a lot of stuff about rats and such junk, but I got up and went into John's bedroom. I listened again; the sound was closer. I didn't want to wake John, for I knew he would be amused, but with all these robberies, I decided I'd find out what it was."

"Finally I located the sound in the hall. I sneaked to the door and listened. Ten seconds of listening convinced me that some one was at Natalie's door and the sound was that of an instrument against the lock."

"Now, what I intended to do was to jerk open John's door suddenly and see who it was and why he was there. But the blamed door stuck as I jerked, and when I did get it open a woman—a woman, you understand!—was scooting down the hallway, not up toward Laura's room, or mine. It was pretty dark, but there was enough light for me to see that it wasn't Laura. Laura is skinny; this woman was plump."

"I can't tell you why I followed except the thing was queer. The lady reached the end of the hall, opened Laura's door and disappeared. I followed. I was just in time to see the door into Laura's bedroom close. Now, I was sure it wasn't Laura, so I followed again. Laura was asleep, and there was a swish of skirts through the door into my mother's bedroom. I lost track there of everything except that some one was trying to escape me. My mother was snoring softly as we whizzed through—whatever it was ahead of me and myself—then—well, the next thing after more door-opening and closing, my going into a chair once and knocking the peeling off my shins, was your screaming." He paused and stared at me. "Loulie, do you remember any one coming in before you screamed?"

"No," I replied. "I really don't remember screaming. I knew something was wrong, that I was sitting up in bed, that I had snapped on the lights, and that—that you were there."

"I was so astonished when you screamed," he went on, "that I stopped dead in my tracks and who-ever was trying to escape me, did. I went back to bed and did some thinking. I tried to connect up all the queer things that had happened—Natalie losing her jewels, Winthrop being arrested, the woman at Natalie's door, but I couldn't get anywhere. My mind simply tied itself into a knot, everything jumbled. I could make no connection. But there's one thing certain. If we have a thief here it's a woman!"

My mouth dropped open a bit in the way I thought I had learned to control, but I didn't say anything.

"If there had been just one door locked, I'd have had her, but every door was unlocked, making it as easy as pie for anybody who wanted to steal."

"But we have nothing to steal," I expostulated; "at least no jewels. I have none, Laura has none, and your mother's are in the bank. Natalie's door was locked, wasn't it?"

"She has had her lesson."

"Besides, we've never been certain before that a thief was here."

"We are not certain now," he pointed out. "But something is wrong, queer. I want you to keep mum about it. I'm going to investigate."

"Ah, Monsieur Lecoq!" I taunted.

"Don't laugh. I'm quite serious about it. I have all sorts of theories."

"If you are quite serious about it you ought to have all sorts of a detective," I suggested.

"One is coming, but it isn't going to keep me from doing a little work on my own hook. A detective might find a gang planted here among the servants; I might find the chief at the dinner table. Fascinating, isn't it?"

"Horrible!" I declared.

"Perhaps Natalie's ruby was stolen after all," he mused. He began pacing again. "I thought she was crazy, for why would a thief take one jewel and leave the others? I'm not so sure now but that she is right. We no doubt have a charming creature in our midst with a delightful sense of humor."

"And you are going to unearth her?"

He sat down again and looked at me intently.

"Are you losing the main point?"

"Once I Made a Fool of Myself," He Interrupted.

ne demanded. "You must be cleared of suspicion, you know."

"Oh!" I exclaimed. "I am no longer suspected. Miss Agazziz came to my room last night and said she was sure I hadn't taken her ruby; that she realized I couldn't possibly have done such a thing, couldn't possibly."

"Well, I'll be —!" He stared at me. "What happened to make her change her mind?"

"I don't know," I answered. "She didn't give me the impression that anything had happened. She was quite calm and cool as she always is, and she was rather friendly."

He brushed the forelock out of his eyes, and regarded me for a while with that comically surprised expression of his. Then he laughed.

"You'll excuse me," he said, "but the thing is funny. Wait a minute! Let me think! She heard about Winthrop."

"I'm sure she didn't," I assured him. "I don't see how she could have heard. No one knew it but myself until that message came for your mother. Your mother talked to Mr. Crowninshield from her own room. It's her own private number, as you know, and has no possible connection with the other phone. The conversation revealed nothing, even if any one had been listening at the door. Laura did not guess, and you know how keen she is. Miss Agazziz came in soon after, but she couldn't possibly have known."

"I believe she did know."

"You're rather strange in your belief, aren't you? Whatever else Natalie is she isn't a hypocrite," I defended. "You ought not to be too hard on her, remembering that once you—"

"Once I made a fool of myself," he interrupted. "We're going to forget all about that, you and I, aren't we?"

"Yes," I replied; then after a moment. "We are going to forget all about everything, you and I."

"Except that we love each other."

"We are going to forget that," I said firmly.

"I have another strange belief," he smiled. "I believe I'm going to marry you."

There was no use answering. I picked up two tennis balls and started for the other end of the court. But it's just my sex to have the last word. I looked back over my shoulder.

"And I believe you're going to make some girl an argumentative husband," I said very, very sweetly.

He opened his lips to reply, smiled, changed his mind and swung his racket into position.

"Ready!" he called.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood, and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

SOME CURRIED DISHES.

PERSONS who prepare their food highly spiced will like curried dishes.

These foods are either seasoned by the use of a curry powder or are served with a curry sauce.

Curry sauce may be used with eggs, chicken, etc., and is prepared as follows:

Curry Sauce.—Take a tablespoonful of chopped onion and cook for five minutes in a tablespoonful of butter. Stir in a tablespoonful of curry powder and two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir it into the butter. Then add a pint of hot milk, stirring it in very gradually.

Meat and Vegetable Curries.

Curry of Beef.—Take cold roast beef and cut it into small cubes. Mince an onion and brown it in a frying pan. Add to the onion a teaspoonful of curry powder, a saltspoonful of salt and quarter of a pint of water. Thicken this with a teaspoonful of flour mixed with a little cold water. Add the meat and squeeze over it the juice of an orange.

Curried Tomatoes.—Take a cupful of rice and wash well. Then open a quart can of tomatoes and have a casserole dish ready. Put in alternate layers of tomatoes and the uncooked rice, season with one tablespoonful of minced ham, one teaspoonful of minced parsley and a teaspoonful of curry powder. On the top layer sprinkle cracker crumbs and dots of butter and bake.

These Are Highly Spiced.

Curried Eggs.—Take four eggs, an onion, an apple, one tablespoonful of curry powder, one dessertspoonful of minced chutney, one ounce and a half of butter, one ounce of flour, half a pint of stock, a squeeze of lemon juice and salt. Boil the eggs hard, remove the shell and cut in half lengthways. Chop the onion and apple and fry in the butter. Add the curry powder and then the flour and the stock. Boil for ten minutes; then put in the eggs until they are warmed through. Serve with boiled rice.

Curried Chicken.—Take a nice tender chicken. Cut up and place in a deep saucepan. Fry in butter until light brown. Take out the chicken and fry chopped onion in the same butter until light brown, add one dessertspoonful of curry powder and fry a little, constantly stirring. Put the chicken in again, with one dessertspoonful of grated coconut, three cloves and a small stick of cinnamon. Mix well. Add one gill of rich brown sauce, one-half gill of tomato pulp and one-half gill of stock or water. Boil and skim. Cover and let simmer forty minutes. Ten minutes before serving salt to taste and add the juice of one-half a lemon. Serve with plain boiled rice.

THE COMB'S MORNING STORY

You know the story the comb tells. It's a very discouraging story, too.

Day by day, a few more strands are added, of hair that is turning grey, losing its vitality, its strength and its health.

Grey hair is as unbecoming as old age. Natural pride should have its own say. You wish to look young and it is your DUTY to appear so. You can't even LOOK young if the silver threads begin to show.

Be a "Young Woman" in looks, always. The grey hairs belong to the chaperon and to the grandmother.

For separate wear, or as part of a complete costume the stylish waist here shown will serve equally as well. It has the closing at the front and the chemise is removable. Tucks at the shoulders are stitched to the waist line at the back, but extend only to about bust depth at front. The long collar is an attractive feature. It is trimmed with insertion, as illustrated, and the short sleeves are similarly treated.

The pattern (5912) is cut in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure. Medium size will require 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material, 5/8 of a yard of 18-inch all-over, and 2 1/2 yards of insertion.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

General John H. Morgan's cavalry captured the Federal cavalry garrison at Lexington, Ky., securing nearly 600 prisoners. This blow was struck far in the rear of Buell's Federal army which was then in southern Kentucky, following up the retreat of Bragg's Confederates. Morgan's force left Buell's front on the 16th for a swift ride around the Federal flank.

Everyone Is Delighted With Our SUITS and COATS

A tremendous variety of refined styles. They fit exceptionally well. There is no getting away from the extraordinary extent and beauty of our garment stock this season. The space that this department occupies assures satisfaction. When customers come back, after looking and shopping thoroughly, to buy here, at the same time complimenting us upon our styles and values. When this happens, not once, but dozens and dozens of times, it surely must have a real significance. Certainly we have had abundant proof that our garments appeal to people of taste, also in the face of the most careful comparison, our styles and our values excel unmistakably.

Our Suits and Coats Have Another Pronounced Advantage—THEY FIT.

Garment after garment requires no alteration, and is ready to be worn, except for sewing hem. There are two reasons for this. In the first place, we have taken great pains to see that our garments are correctly cut and made, and in the second place, our immense assortment buying, as we do for five large stores, includes almost every variation of size and gives you values at the price that cannot be duplicated anywhere. Our Coat and Suit Stock is wonderfully complete.

The cloths are in endless variety, Diagonal mixtures, Rough Zibeline, Broadcloth, Velvets and Velours, Caracul, Astrakan and Chinchilla.

The Most Becoming Hats Are Now On Display.

This, in substance, is the expression of hundreds of women, who have selected hats here this Fall. A recent purchase of two traveling men's sample lines puts new ideas in the department. This purchase consists of Felts, Velours, Hatters and Silk Plush, Velvets and Beavers. The popular price prevailing.

AROUND THE CAMP FIRE

STORIES OF 16TH WISCONSIN

Major Reynolds, While Under Arrest, Leads Regiment Gallantly at Battle of Shiloh.

The Sixteenth Wisconsin would have done credit to any army. It is seldom mentioned without recalling to some one the first major, Tom Reynolds, who became lieutenant colonel before the war closed.

The Sixteenth joined General Grant's army near Pittsburg Landing, March 20, 1862. Major Reynolds said something that was not agreeable to one of his superiors, not of the regiment, was placed in arrest and his sword taken, writes Lieut. Col. J. A. Watrous, in the Milwaukee Sentinel. He was still without a sword when the great battle of Shiloh began, April 6, 1862, but he went in with the regiment. When Col. Benjamin Allen and Lieut. Col. Cassius Fairchild were wounded Major Reynolds borrowed a sword and commanded the regiment gallantly until the close of the two days' fight.

Word was sent to General Grant that the officer of the Sixteenth, who had been placed in arrest had gone in to the fight, and when his superior officers were wounded had taken command, contrary to military discipline. General Grant sent an aid for an exact report as to what Major Reynolds had done. The report was promptly returned. General Grant sent word to Major Reynolds, informing him that he was released from arrest, returning his sword, and thanked him for the courage and good judgment he had displayed.

Four companies of the Sixteenth are entitled to the honor of having been with the force of pickets the morning of the battle who were the first troops fired upon by Johnson's army. It was in this skirmish that Captain Saxe of Company A, a Waukegan county citizen of prominence, was killed. The balance of the Sixteenth was formed in line of battle thirty or forty rods in advance of the camp it had maintained for several days. It is said by those who witnessed it that these young fellows, fresh from farms, shops, stores and pineries, went through the movement of changing front on Tenth company, under fire, with as much coolness as a veteran regiment of regulars would have done. Colonel Allen was wounded and had two horses shot under him, and Lieutenant Colonel Fairchild was severely wounded.

Shiloh was the first experience of real war that the Sixteenth had. It was a sorrowful experience. On the field 76 of its dead heroes told of the sacrifices they had made for an endangered country and its insulted flag, and 149 more or less severely wounded told another story of pain and sacrifice.

The Sixteenth held an exposed position at the battle of Corinth, and showed its mettle by keeping the enemy back. Here it lost ten killed and twenty-seven wounded. The regiment did a large amount of guard duty, marching and counter marching during the following year, and was engaged in several actions of importance. It re-enlisted in March, 1864, and spent a month in Wisconsin, leaving for the front again on April 18. In the meantime, Lieutenant Colonel Fairchild had been made colonel, Reynolds lieutenant colonel and Capt. W. F. Dawes major. The regiment reached General Sherman's army about a month after it had begun the great campaign from Chattanooga to Atlanta, having traveled on foot a distance of 350 miles. It was assigned to the army of the Tennessee, and began fighting at Kennesaw mountain on the fifteenth. From then until the fall of Atlanta the regiment was in constant and active service. The battle of Bald Hill was one of the fiercest fought in that great campaign, if not in the war. The hill was taken and retaken several times, with frightful slaughter, the men of both sides clubbing their muskets and fighting like demons. The Sixteenth led in one of these charges. It had for its nearest neighbor another Wisconsin regiment, the Twelfth.

Dehler's Stores, agents for Ed V. Price & Company, Merchant Tailors, of Chicago, has received the following letter with their agreement to make good any coat of their manufacture which may not be holding its shape. This guarantee absolutely protects the customer who uses Price Clothing.

Dehler's Stores,

Seymour, Ind.

Gentlemen:

Following the custom pursued by us for many years we wish our old customers, as well as our new, to return any coats made by us during the past season in which the fronts have not held their shape or the linings given satisfactory wear. We will be pleased to put in a new front, or if this cannot be done, make a new coat and also reline the garment free of charge.

THE BOTTOM DOG.

"So you want a position in my firm!" said the fat man with the thick gold chain. "Well, what were you in your last job?"

"A doer, sir," answered the sad-eyed applicant.

"What's that?" asked the employer. "Well, sir," said the sad-eyed one, "I was the doer, and the rest were the tellers. When my gov'nor wanted a thing done he would tell the cashier, the cashier would tell it to the bookkeeper, the bookkeeper would tell it to his assistant, his assistant would tell it to the chief clerk, and the chief clerk would tell it to me."

"And what would happen then?"

"Well, sir," replied the sad-eyed applicant, "as I hadn't anyone to mention it to, I'd—do it."

Annoying Mishap.

"A midnight revel was held in some private club rooms on the top floor of the Towers building last night. Jagsworth was rather late in arriving and only one elevator was running. What do you suppose happened?"

"Something went wrong with the elevator."

"Right. It stuck between the first and second floors."

"And that, I presume, was one time when Jagsworth couldn't rise to the occasion."
